Auto Publish Utility for Microsoft Office Project Server 2010

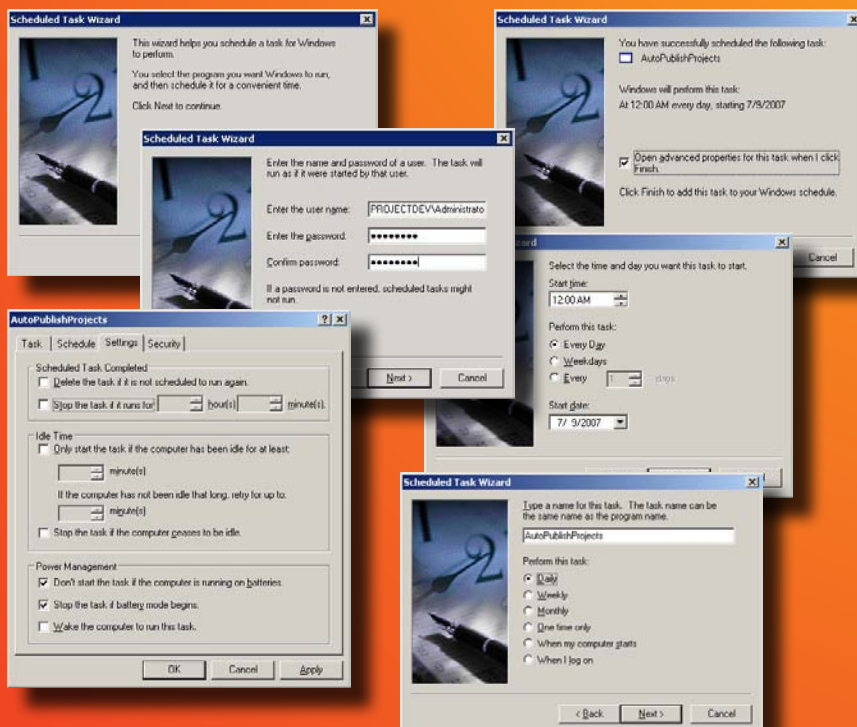

From one of the world's leading Microsoft Enterprise Project Premier Solution Providers.

In the Microsoft Office EPM solution, Project Managers determine when to publish a saved project. Unfortunately, for many organizations, this means that data in the Project Server database is not up to date because Project Managers may save projects, but forget to publish them - resulting in out of date reports and program/project information in PWA. This utility resolves that issue by allowing a Program Manager or Administrator (or anyone with appropriate permissions) to define when projects with certain attributes should be published. Typically this is scheduled to occur overnight. The utility works by checking the criteria that may be set in enterprise fields. For example, a custom field could be set to project status and you may only want to publish when the project status is set to "Active". Alternatively, the custom field could simply be called "AutoPublish" and the value set to either "Yes" or "No" and this would automatically publish the project when set to "Yes". Any combination of values defined in up to three custom fields, Auto Publish Premier Edition Supports Unlimited Custom Fields. Can be used to determine when projects will be automatically published.
